Meeting the challenges of Agriculture and Forestry with Commissioner Bob Odom

As the cool December chill settles in the air, Louisiana residents are reminded of some helpful tips when purchasing firewood. “Consumers need to make sure they’re getting their money’s worth when they purchase firewood,” Commissioner of Agriculture and Forestry Bob Odom said. “Firewood should always be sold by the cord or, as it is sold in retail stores, by a fraction of a cord. If someone is selling it any other way, that is against the law.”

A cord of wood measures 128 cubic feet and can be verified by placing wood in a 4-foot tall, 8-foot long, 4-foot wide stack or a 4-foot tall, 16-foot long, 2-foot wide stack. “If it adds up to 128 cubic feet then it’s a legitimate cord of wood,” Odom said, noting that selling wood by the rick, rack, pile, stack, face cord or truckload is not permissible. “Our weights and measures division is responsible for making sure what is advertised is what is delivered. If someone thinks he has been short changed some firewood, he can call our office at 225-922-3780, and we will send someone out to inspect the situation.” Other important considerations when purchasing firewood are the type of wood and the length of time it has been cured, or dried.

According to Jimmy Culpepper, forestry information and education chief, live oak is one of the best species of firewood available in Louisiana. “It’s a little bit difficult to split but it probably has the highest heat value you’ll find around here,” Culpepper noted. Other woods Culpepper recommends include white oak, red oak, hickory and green ash because they all produce a high amount of heat when burned. “There are a lot of other species out there, and you can burn just about any of them as long as they have been cured properly,” Culpepper said.

Odom added, “It’s important to know what kind of wood you are purchasing, especially if you are paying a premium price for it. You definitely don’t want to pay top dollar for a cord of wood with very little heat value.”

The curing aspect of firewood is of special importance because it could affect the safety of a fireplace. “Burning green or wet wood causes a build up of creosote in a chimney which can eventually lead to chimney fires,” Culpepper warned. To avoid creosote build up, Culpepper said to look for wood that has been cured between three and six months. “Inspect the wood to look for clues as to how long it was dried. Properly cured wood may appear a bit gray in color, and you might notice cracks in the end of the wood,” he said. Odom also recommended chimney inspections for all houses with fireplaces. “Before you light the first fire of the season, call someone to inspect your fireplace for creosote build up,” Odom said. “It’s an extra step in preparing for winter, but it’s worth the effort.”

Periods of Extreme Cold Expected in Louisiana this Winter

by Jay Grymes, State Climatologist

Louisiana can expect a very different winter this year compared to the last two years.

The last two winters were quite mild, even by Louisiana standards. Seasonal temperatures during the 98-99 and 99-00 winters averaged as much as 3' to 6' above normal, with few if any prolonged runs of freezing temperatures. Forecasts for the upcoming winter are also calling for seasonal temperatures across Louisiana to be near normal or slightly-above normal. However, these seasonal projections forecasts may not tell the whole story.

Unlike the past two winters, we can expect more frequent periods of extremely cold air rolling through Louisiana. The disappearance of La Nina over recent weeks means a change in weather patterns over the United States. The good news is that as La Nina goes, so goes the drought which crippled the state’s timber and rice industries.

The rains have returned. But the weather patterns which will provide needed winter rains also will allow extremely cold air to dive out of Canada and into the U.S. during the upcoming months. And a few of these “Arctic Outbreaks” or “Arctic Express” - marked by subfreezing temperatures - will plunge southward, all the way to the Gulf Coast.

The recent ice storm - which hampered travel across many northern parishes with ¼” to ½” glaze in some locations - is likely to be the first of several “Expresses” that will reach the Pelican State this winter. Although this latest bitterly-cold air mass lost its forward “punch” before reaching the coastal parishes, temperatures dipped into the low to mid 20s for as much as 8 to 12 hours in several north Louisiana towns. As the winter progresses, it is quite likely that other “Outbreaks” will have the momentum to push their way through the entire state and out into the open Gulf waters.

Fortunately, these air masses do “warm” as they travel southward across the country. Even so, they are capable of producing single-digit temperatures across the northern parishes, teens in central Louisiana, and low 20’s across the coastal marshes. And they occasionally can produce long runs of freezing temperatures. An example is the severe freeze of February 1996, when temperatures as far south as Baton Rouge remained at or below freezing for the better part of three days (see figure). Depending on the circumstances, the duration of below-freezing temperatures may be even more important in terms of potential damage than the absolute minimum observed. The combination, however, can result in costly - even deadly consequences.

Homeowners should be prepared for these “big chills” by remembering the three “P’s” of winter protection: pipes, pets and tender plants. Agri-business interests - especially the south Louisiana’s citrus industry - and production facilities across the state also should review their “ready status” for these runs of intense cold, especially since there has been little or no need to implement protective strategies in recent years.

Three new peach varieties released

The LSU AgCenter has just re-leased three new peach varieties, which will be available commer-cially in the fall of 2001. And LSU AgCenter horticulturist Dr. Charlie Johnson says the names of those varieties – LaSweet, LaRouge and LaBelle – are somewhat matched to their characteristics.

Johnson, who developed the varieties, says LaSweet is low-acid and very sweet. LaRouge has a bright red skin. And LaBelle is a late-season peach that will extend Louisiana’s fresh peach season into mid-July.

The LSU AgCenter researcher also calls LaSweet an exotic vari-ety because it has white instead of yellow flesh. And, because it is low-acid, it almost doesn’t taste like a typical peach, he says, ex-plaining the sugar-to-acid ratio is 75-to- 1, compared to 20-to-1 for most peaches. “It will be in demand because it’s very aromatic and fla-vorful,” Johnson said of the LaSweet variety, which should ripen the first week in June. “It’s firmer than most low-acid peaches, but it’s still hard to handle for pack-ing and shipping because it bruises easily.” LaRouge’s red color will show up well in the mar-ketplace, according to Johnson, who says it will ripen about the first of July, which means it most likely will be promoted as a Fourth of July peach. “The flesh is yel-low, and the peach is very firm. It will hold up well in picking and packing,” Johnson said.

LaBelle should ripen about July 8-10, so it will help fill a gap be-tween two popular Louisiana peaches – LaFeliciana and Dixiland – that are recommended for Loui-siana growers by the LSU AgCenter.

The LSU AgCenter has not re-leased any new peach varieties since 1992, when Gala, Delta and Glory became available. “I used to release one every few years,” Johnson said. “Now I’m grouping them.”

Developing a new peach vari-ety takes on average 13 years, Johnson said. The LSU AgCenter started releasing new varieties in 1969 with LaPremier. “LaPremier is still widely grown,” Johnson said. “Peach varieties stay around for a long time.” LaSweet, LaRouge and LaBelle are Nos. 22-24 as the list keeps growing. Johnson says the next releases should be in the next two or three years. Waiting in the wings are some more exotic, white-fleshed varieties, he says. “The trend is the development of vari-eties that can be aimed more at niche markets,” Johnson said.

Louisiana’s peach industry has not fared well the past few years with mild winters and surprise freezes during the spring.

“Peaches do best when the win-ters are cold – but when spring comes, it needs to stay warm,” Johnson said.

For 30 years, from 1956 to 1986, Louisiana had weather more like Johnson’s description and thus plentiful peach crops. But the 1990s brought more erratic weather conditions, including a couple of years of heavy losses.

“Peaches are expensive to grow because of the intensive labor in-volved and the cost of pesticides,” Johnson said.

The three new varieties are best grown in Louisiana’s middle re-gion, which includes the Baton Rouge through Alexandria area, Johnson said.

For more information on peaches or other crops or plants recommended for your area, con-tact a county agent in your parish LSU AgCenter Extension office or visit a field day at your nearest LSU AgCenter research station.

Lagniappe Cookery.....

Traditional New Year's Recipes

Black-Eyed Pea Corn Muffins
1/3 cup dried black-eyed peas
1¼ cup yellow cornmeal
¾ cup coarsely grated Cheddar cheese
½ cup all-purpose flour
*1 tablespoon sugar
1 tablespoon baking powder
1½ teaspoon salt
6 tablespoons unsalted butter
2 pickled jalapeno peppers
*¾ cup + 2 tablespoons whole milk
*1 lg. Louisiana egg
2 tablespoons chopped fresh flat-leaf Italian parsley
To "quick-soak" peas,put in saucepan and add cold water to cover by 2". Bring to a boil and cook 2 minutes. Remove from heat and let soak 1 hour. Drain. In a saucepan, simmer peas in water to cover until tender, about 20 minutes. Drain. Preheat oven to 425 degrees and butter 12 muffin cups. Whisk together cornmeal, cheese, flour,sugar, baking powder and salt. Melt butter. Wearing rubber gloves, seed and mince peppers. In a small bowl, whisk together butter, pep-pers, milk and egg. Stir butter mix-ture, peas and parsley into corn-meal mixture until just combined. Do not overblend. Divide batter among muffin cups and bake in middle of oven 15 - 20 minutes or until tester comes out clean.

New Year Crab Balls
*1 lb. crab meat, finely chopped
1/2 c. canned water chestnuts, finley chopped
1/2 c. whole wheat bread crumbs
1/2 tsp. white pepper
1/2 tsp. dried mustard
1 Tbsp. fresh parsley, finely minced
1/4 c. scallions (use white and green portions), finely chopped
1/2 tsp. fresh ginger, finely minced
*4 egg whites
2 Tbsp.soy sauce
2 Tbsp. sesame oil
1/2 c. whole wheat bread crumbs
Preheat oven to 400 F Mix to-gether all the ingredients - except the final 1/2 cup of bread crumbs - until well blended. Form into 1-inch balls and roll in the bread crumbs. On a lightly oiled baking sheet, bake for 12-15 minutes or until crab balls are crisp and golden brown. Serve with mustard dip.
Hoppin' Johns
1½ cups blackeye peas
*1 lb. ham hocks
1 onion
½ teaspoon crushed red pepper salt & pepper to taste
4 cups water
*1½ cups long grain white rice
1 cup shredded smoked cheddar cheese
In a large pot, place the peas, ham hock, onion, red peppers,s alt and pepper. Cover with water and bring to a boil. Reduce heat to me-dium-low and cook for 1½ hours. Remove ham hocks and cut meat ito pieces. Return meat to pot. Stir in the rice cover and cook until rice is tender, about 20 - 25 minutes. Season to taste with salt and pep-per. Sprinkle shredded cheese over top, if desired.

Honey Glaze Ham
*5 lbs. ready to eat ham
¼ cup whole cloves
¼ cup dark corn syrup
